[Festival du Film [Pas Trop] Scientifique]

Originally, ADOCS made a simple observation: what means being a PhD student, and doing scientific research in general, isn't really clear for the rest of society. To fix this, the association set up, in 1999 (already 20 years!), a way to talk about PhD's research to everyone: through a short and funny scientific movie. Thus, was born the festival.

PhD students and young researchers from the University of La Rochelle produce short films (4-6 minutes): directed alone or with others, fiction or documentary, free to choose the style and content... The only imperative is popularization! The audio-visual center of the university helps apprentice directors with equipment loans (cameras, microphones, studio ...) and training in production and editing.

Each year, a jury awards a prize for the best popular film and a prize for the best film. The public is also invited to award a prize at the end of screenings.

Information meeting for the 2019 session of the festival:
Tuesday, March 5 at 18h in ILE building conference room (LIENSs)!

[CAP Fac]

On February 6, ADOCS took part to the CAP FAC event. Organised by La Rochelle University for high school students of 4 public high schools in La Rochelle, the goal of this day was to introduce students to the university through exchanges with students, teachers, ...

In the afternoon, 30 students attended three workshops planned by five PhD students from La Rochelle University. They introduced their background and thesis subject in different fields: history, civil engineering and mathematics.

[CJC News]

The CJC has spoken out against the plan for a massive increase in doctoral fees for non-EU foreigners. Several mobilisations took place in French universities, which led the Minister to abandon this project for PhD students. CJC continues to oppose this reform, which is still applicable for Licenses and Masters students.
